DETAILED ACTION

1. In view of the Appeal Brief Request for Review filed on February 13, 2008, PROSECUTION IS HEREBY REOPENED. A new ground of rejection is set forth below.

To avoid abandonment of the application, appellant must exercise one of the following two options:

(1) file a reply under 37 CFR 1.111 (if this Office action is non-final) or a reply under 37 CFR 1.113 (if this Office action is final); or,

(2) initiate a new appeal by filing a notice of appeal under 37 CFR 41.31 followed by an appeal brief under 37 CFR 41.37. The previously paid notice of appeal fee and appeal brief fee can be applied to the new appeal. If, however, the appeal fees set forth in 37 CFR 41.20 have been increased since they were previously paid, then appellant must pay the difference between the increased fees and the amount previously paid.

A Supervisory Patent Examiner (SPE) has approved of reopening prosecution by signing below.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 1-6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Yang (US Patent No. 6,573,940 B1) in view of De Haan et al. (US Patent No. 6,122,016).

In considering claim 1, Yang discloses all the claimed subject matter, note 1) the claimed an apparatus for providing a smooth interpolated video signal at any desired rate from a slower rate video signal (Fig. 1) means for up-sampling the slower rate video signal to the desired rate is met by the upconversion element 110 that provides upconverted samples $b(n)$ at a higher sample rate, $L \cdot f_{in}$ (L is integers) (Fig. 1, col. 4, lines 1-48), and 2) the claimed means for filtering the up-sampled slower rate video signal using a human visual model to produce the smooth interpolated video signal is met by the filter 112 which filters the samples with a transfer function $h(n)$ and removes the alias spectral components (Fig. 1, col. 4, lines 1-48).

However, Yang explicitly does not disclose the claimed filtering the up-sampled slower rate is an adaptive filter.

De Haan et al teach in a method of processing a video signal, including the step furnishing a filtered signal in response to the video signal, the filtering is adapted in dependence upon the statistical property (AC) of a modification effected by the filtering in a previous time interval of the video signal (see the abstract, Figs. 1-2 and 5, col. 5, line 30 to col. 7, line 8 and col. 8, line 56 to col. 9, line 51).

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to incorporate the adaptive filter as taught by De Haan et al into Yang's system in order to remove artifacts ("noise") from the video image which are visible to a human viewer.

In considering claim 2, the claimed further comprising means for restoring a direct current level for the smooth interpolated video signal is met by the adder 15 which corrects the DC-component of the video signal by the difference between the filtered and the original DC-component of the reference video signal (step VI of Fig. 5, col. 8, lines 26-55 of De Haan et al).

Claim 3 is rejected for the same reason as discussed in claim 1 above.

Claim 4 is rejected for the same reason as discussed in claim 2 above.

Claim 5 is rejected for the same reason as discussed in claim 1 above.

Claim 6 is rejected for the same reason as discussed in claim 2 above.
